“White is pure and clear, neutral, weightless, without tension. White permits the highest degree and human development. Mediates between all shades of colour.”

Verner Panton

“Black, absolute darkness. No to black means yes to colour. Black/white is impersonal attitude (waiters/waitresses) or larger-than-life festivity (gala dress). Black is serious, distinguished, professional, compact. Is used in areas where the colours of other things are supposed to make an impact, e.g. exhibition rooms.”

Exploring Verner Panton

Creating a beautiful and truly inspirational object out of the simplest of ideas is something that Verner Panton turned into an art form. With designs that are open to interpretation on so many different levels, the experience they offer is unique to every individual.

The story began in 1964 with Verner Panton's 'Fun' lamp. More than just a light source, its appeal is multi-faceted. Making a sound reminiscent of distant bells it also generates an overwhelming sense of calm. But such diverse sensory stimulation, as Panton himself said in 1985, occurred quite by chance.

I have the 'Fun' lamp hanging in my own home, reminding me every day what an exceptional artist Verner Panton was. More than that, the lamp is my son, Gustav's, favourite toy and the fascination shows in his eyes, his face and his body language as he reaches out and discovers the sounds and movements that it makes. And every day finds something new to captivate him.

Passionate about his work, design was Verner Panton's life. And he designed so he could create objects that would enhance other people's lives. It is this that makes him unique and immortal as a designer.

In conjunction with his wife, Marianne Panton, we at Verpan have had the opportunity to produce a wide range of Verner Panton's lights. You'll find a selection of these featured in this book.

Combining movement, colour, sound and, of course, light, to create a sense of life, when you buy a Panton light, you will get the chance to discover every day just how inspirational his designs can be.
